WHY INVEST IN ENERGY TRANSITION

Amid environmental disasters due to global warming, pressure to meet the Paris Accord targets on rising global temperatures and growing demand from expanding and wealthier populations, the appetite for energy is set to increase tremendously, especially for renewable and clean energy. These demands underpin the need for a transition in the global energy system, resulting in a substantial change in the global energy mix and emergence of energy efficient solutions.

Macro opportunity for energy transition:

1. Increased energy demand

2bn growth

POPULATION

Global population will reach 9.7bn in 2050<sup>1</sup> with rising incomes, driving an increase in demand.

2. A changing energy mix

60%

LOW CARBON ENERGY

By 2030, the global energy mix is estimated to mainly comprise of low carbon energy, while fossil fuels decline to approximately 40%.<sup>2</sup>

100%

RENEWABLES

Germany turbocharged its transition by moving forward its plans to get 100% of energy from renewable sources by 2035.<sup>3</sup>

3. The need for energy efficient solutions

33.1Gt

EMISSIONS

CO<sub>2</sub> emissions from energy use alone grew to an all-time high in 2018 rising by 2% and represent 70% of the global total.<sup>4</sup>

A substantial investment is required across environmental solutions:
US$115trn of investment in 30 years<sup>5</sup>
