PRESS RELEASE

BNP Paribas Asset Management appoints Global Head of Investments

BNP Paribas Asset Management ('BNPP AM') announces the appointment of Rob Gambi as Global Head of Investments, based in London. He will report to Frédéric Janbon, CEO, and will be a member of BNPP AM's Executive Committee.

Rob's career in asset management spans more than 30 years. Most recently he was CIO of Henderson Global Investors, prior to which he was Global Head of Fixed Income at UBS Global Asset Management. Rob holds a Bachelor's degrees in Actuarial Studies and Statistics from Macquarie University and an MBA in Finance from the Australian Graduate School of Management.

As Global Head of Investments, Rob will be responsible for the management and performance of all of BNPP AM's investment teams across asset classes and locations. He will oversee all investment management activities including performance, process and research, as well as the implementation of BNPP AM's Global Sustainability Strategy, announced earlier this year, across the investment platform. He will also work closely with the Global Client Group and Product & Strategic Marketing teams to ensure the optimum product range and enhance BNPP AM's client-focused investment culture.

Frédéric Janbon, CEO of BNP Paribas Asset Management, comments:

"Rob's career at a number of leading global asset managers means that he brings extensive industry experience to the role of Global Head of Investments. He will be instrumental in enhancing our investment platform, including overseeing the integration of our Global Sustainability Strategy, in support of our goal of delivering long-term sustainable returns for our clients. I am very pleased to welcome him to BNP Paribas Asset Management and wish him every success in his new role."
